

To whom it may concern,

It is my great pleasure to recommend Mr. Ding-Nan, Guo (Danny) for his scholarship application in support of his dual degree program with Emlyon business school.

Being the Director of the International MBA (IMBA) program at National Chengchi University, I have had the opportunity to observe Danny not only through the program but also in my Financial Management course this semester. From my perspective, he stands out as a mature and goal-oriented candidate who combines practical industry experience with a clear motivation for further development.

In class, Danny demonstrates a serious and responsible learning attitude. He is attentive during lectures and able to respond thoughtfully when engaged in discussions. Although he is not an overly outspoken student, he consistently shows that he is well-prepared and actively processing the material. He also takes initiative to clarify concepts after class, which reflects both his discipline and his commitment to building a solid understanding of the subject.

Danny currently works as an Account Manager in the global technology and ODM industry, where he is involved in managing complex server programs. He has been engaged in projects involving multi-million-dollar investments and large-scale revenue programs, and has also participated in manufacturing relocation initiatives in response to global trade and tariff changes. These experiences demonstrate his exposure to business complexity and early involvement in strategic decision-making.

What distinguishes Danny is his combination of professional maturity, consistency, and international awareness. Through his work in a multicultural environment, he has developed the ability to communicate across different perspectives and operate effectively in global settings. He also shows a clear intention to further strengthen his analytical and strategic capabilities in our program.

To the Admissions and Scholarship Committee,

It is a genuine pleasure to recommend Mr. Danny Guo for his scholarship application in support of his dual degree program with emlyon business school.

I had the opportunity to teach Danny in my Accounting course in the International MBA (IMBA) program at National Chengchi University, and he quickly stood out for his steady commitment and thoughtful approach to learning. He consistently came to class well-prepared, approached the material with care, and demonstrated a quiet determination to truly understand—not just complete—the work.

What I particularly appreciate about Danny is his ability to connect theory with practice. With his background in the technology and ODM industry, he brings a grounded perspective to the classroom. He does not treat accounting as abstract knowledge; rather, he uses it as a lens to make sense of real business decisions. This ability to translate concepts into application reflects both intellectual clarity and professional maturity.

Danny contributes to class discussions in a composed and respectful manner. He listens attentively, considers different viewpoints, and speaks with clarity when he chooses to share. There is a sense of thoughtfulness in how he engages—never overstated, but always meaningful—which makes his presence in class both reliable and valued.

Beyond academics, Danny's experience working in an international environment has clearly shaped his adaptability and communication skills. His ability to collaborate across cultures and navigate diverse perspectives will serve him well in a global academic setting such as this dual degree program.

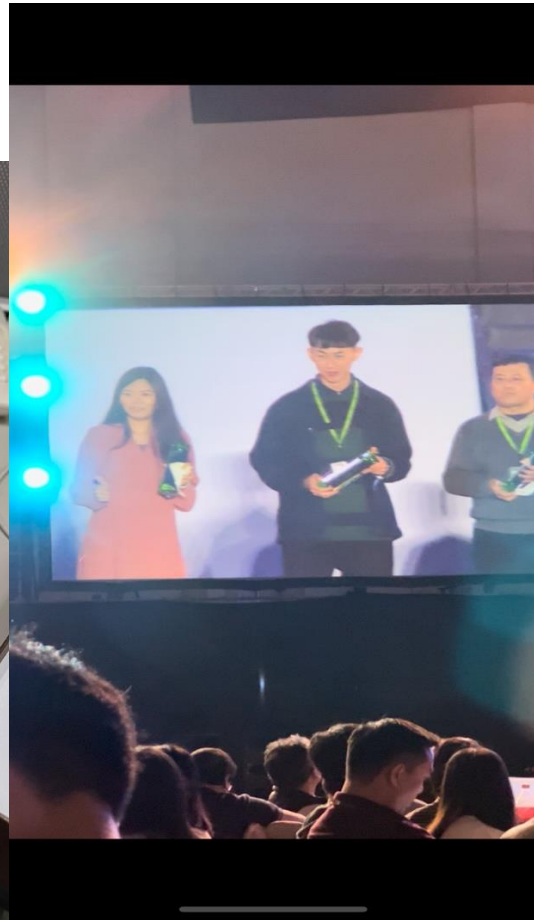

From my perspective, Danny is someone who combines discipline with sincerity. He approaches his work with consistency, carries himself with quiet confidence, and demonstrates the kind of maturity that allows him to make the most of opportunities like this one. I have every confidence that he will benefit from—and contribute meaningfully to—both the academic community and the broader cohort.

I am therefore very happy to support his application and recommend him for this scholarship.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Tsui
